

UK Lean Summit 2016

Learning Lean, Lean Learning

As part of our mission to help organisations with their Lean journeys the Lean Enterprise Academy is holding its annual UK Lean Summit at Chesford Grange Hotel, Kenilworth.

- 8 Presentations
- 12 Learning Sessions
- 3 Lean Masterclasses

The purpose of the Summit is as follows:

- To raise consciousness of the latest developments in Lean Thinking and Practice
- To provide insight into practical ways to get started, deepen or enhance your Lean journey
- To enable participants to build their own network of Lean Thinkers

We do this by:

- Bringing together the best Lean practitioners and sensei in the Lean world for participants to learn from
- Building time into the programme for participants to network
- Providing a variety of learning situations – including pre-Summit workshops on leading edge topics, keynote talks, interactive learning sessions and panel discussions
- Enabling groups from the same organisations to come to the Summit to learn together

Key questions for this year's UK Lean Summit:

- What are the best ways to learn Lean?
- What is Lean learning?
- How do you use Lean Transformation Framework (LTF) to transform your business?
- What is the Lean approach to problem solving?
- What are the alternative ways to implement Lean in my organisation?
- What are the fundamentals required to develop a Lean organisation?
- How do the best companies develop their strategies, gain consensus and turn them into action?
- How do the best companies develop and coach leadership to build capability?
- What can we learn from applying Lean across the economy? Examples from manufacturing, retail, service, FMCG, on-line, healthcare and the public sector.

Why attend the summit? - Here's what the attendees of the 2015 event told us:

- World class content
- Extremely engaging and thought provoking
- Lots of transferable learning on engagement
- Very good mix of practical examples, learning and experience
- A great opportunity to measure yourself and your experience against others
- Enriching experience to develop understanding of Lean above the level of tools
- Best place to learn about what Lean really means
- High quality speakers and networking

This is a unique opportunity for the Lean Enterprise Academy's community to come together to learn and share

Lean Leadership Shaping Principles Art Smalley, Author and Consultant, Art of Lean

This presentation will center on ten shaping principles for becoming a better Lean Leader in terms of delivering results and developing people. The ten principles are based upon the experiences of the presenter during his career at Toyota Motor Corporation in Japan. There will be no foreign buzzwords or industry specific jargon utilized in this presentation. The principles are fundamental concepts which work in any environment or any size of team. Each principle will be presented with an example and then time will be reserved for discussion. This material is applicable to leaders at any level of an organization however it is mostly aimed at audiences who have direct line responsibility for performance results and personnel management.

Creating Lean Learning Experiences David Brunt, CEO, Lean Enterprise Academy

There have been lots of approaches to Lean. These range from teaching tools, running rapid improvement or kaizen events, mass training in groups, introducing consulting led management systems or developing expert groups within organisations. One question that continues to be asked is how do we develop everyone to think Lean - after all "Lean Thinking" is the title of the book in which Lean principles were articulated to a wide audience.

For the last couple of years I've been researching how to create "Lean Learning Experiences" - asking the question "what does it take to get each person we interact with to 'understand' think Lean and then actively take part in implementing improvements?" And "what would it take to develop a plan for each individual with the aim of implementing Lean right first time, on time - whilst increasingly deepening each individual's learning and knowledge?"

In this Pre-Summit Masterclass I will share the research and walk people through the process we've been using to create a series of "Lean Learning Experiences" and discuss the benefits of such an approach for both organisations and individuals.

Maximum 18 places available

Grasping the Situation at the Gemba using the Lean Transformation Framework Darren Walsh, Lean Coach, Lean Enterprise Academy

The Lean Enterprise Academy have teamed up with GE Power Services, Service Centre in Rugby, to hold a pre-summit masterclass where attendees will need to use all of their senses to understand the work, current condition and potential problems on a real gemba. This workshop combines walking the process with grasping the situation by utilising our Lean Transformation Framework to gain a greater understanding of what is Lean, and potential gaps that the organisation should solve to move to an improved level of performance.

GE Power Services, Service Centre in Rugby are leaders in providing repair solutions and spare parts for steam turbines to the power industry world-wide, the product & equipment is very large, can be slow moving and the work very technical and is therefore not obvious to see flow or performance. The facility, formerly Alstom Power started its Lean journey a number of years ago and is still at the early stages of their Lean transformation, and like many other business they employed a Lean leader and conducted a number of improvement activities.

18:00 onwards Drinks and Canapés Reception followed by dinner at leisure
